2 DROWN IN MYSTIC LAKE

Car Dives Through Ice; Bodies Are Recovered

Two Boston newspaper photo-engravers were found drowned today in an automobile 20 feet below the surface of lower Mystic Lake in Arlington.

They were James P. Moran, 37, of Chelsea street, Everett, owner and driver of the car, and John H. Fitzpatrick, 45, of Charles street, Arlington, both employed by the Boston Herald.

The two were on a night off last night and had left the home of Moran to drive to Fitzpatrick's home in Arlington.

FINDS AUTO IN LAKE

Metropolitan Patrolman Reginald Wyman was patroling on the Mystic Valley parkway when he sighted an automobile headlight on the ice of the lake, a few feet out from shore and opposite Hayes street.

Then he noticed tire skid marks at the peak of a sharp curve and found they led down over an embankment and 15 feet out over the ice to a huge hole.

Peering into the hole, he saw a faint light under the water. He notified the station.

Captain James Rogers, with Patrolmen George McDonald and Reginald Wyman and a crew of Metropolitan District Commission workmen, grappled for the car and hooked it. Then it was hauled out with a heavy truck.

FIND BODIES IN CAR

The right headlight was off, but the left headlight was still burning faintly. The windshield and both windows on the right side were shattered. The left front window was partly open.

Fitzpatrick was on the right side, lying on his back, his head against the broken windshield and his feet over the back of the seat.

Moran, behind the steering wheel, was slumped over against Fitzpatrick.

Medical Examiner David C. Dow ordered the bodies removed to the Hartwell Funeral Home in Arlington, where they were identified by Leo Pierce of Corey street, Everett, brother-in-law of Moran.

MEDICINE FATAL TO WOMAN

Search was under way today by police for a woman declared to have given medicine to Mrs. Alice Hoffman, 43, of Standish street, Dorchester—medicine which was a contributing factor in Mrs. Hoffman's death, according to Medical Examiner Timothy Leary.

Dr. Leary, following an autopsy, said Mrs. Hoffman's heart was not strong enough for that type of medicine.

The medicine is being chemically analyzed.

WOMAN FRIEND'S ADVICE

Police questioned Bernard Hoffman, husband of the victim, in an attempt to trace the woman who gave his wife the medicine.

Hoffman said his wife, who was ailing, told him she had met a woman friend who had given her medicine which this friend claimed had helped herself.

The husband told Sergeant Francis P. McGuire of Mattapan station that he has no idea who the friend may be.

He said also that he had never seen the medicine, but that on Sunday night his wife told him she had taken some of it.

Yesterday morning she collapsed in the bathroom. Hoffman and his 21-year-old son helped her to bed. A few hours later she died.

The husband said his wife had asked for and had been given some whiskey, but that after she died it was noticed that there were some brown dregs in the whiskey.

This was turned over to police, according to Hoffman.

"If there was a woman who gave her something I hope they get her and prevent some other husband from losing his wife," he said.

According to Dr. Leary, the woman was a sufferer from heart trouble.

Riley Ousted on Truck 'Bribe' Charges, Probe to Continue

After being accused in open hearing of having instigated and personally "put through" the $400 sale of a forged trucking permit, Frank E. Riley of Swampscott, $5000-a-year director of the state division of commercial motor vehicles, was removed from office today.

The removal was voted unanimously by the State Public Utilities Commission.

Commission Chairman Francis J. McKeown ordered a full transcript of hearing evidence turned over to the attorney-general's office.

RILEY TO APPEAL

Attorney Francis Rafter, counsel for Riley, said Riley would undoubtedly appeal the action of the commission and would demand a public hearing.

Before filing the appeal, however, he would await receipt of formal charges against Riley, Attorney Rafter asserted.

He said the charges must be specified within 24 hours.

Grant opposed a suggestion that Riley be suspended, pending the bringing of formal charges against him.

HEARING CONTINUES

After Riley's removal had been voted, Chairman McKeown announced that the commission's investigation of Riley's department would continue.

Removal of Riley was voted by the commission just after a stormy scene at the hearing in which Com-

BRITAIN HEARS SPAIN TO BE INDEPENDENT

LONDON, Feb. 28 (AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain read to the House of Commons today a telegram from Generalissimo Franco asserting that the newly-recognized Spanish nationalist government would maintain its independence.

The prime minister read the message during bitter debate on Britain's recognition of the Nationalist regime, in which the Laborite opposition charged that Italy and Germany would dominate Spain.

The telegram said:

"Spain is not disposed to accept any foreign intervention which might impair their (the Nationalist government's) dignity of sovereignty."

Chamberlain also said Franco had given the British government "assurances against general reprisals for strictly political offenses."

ANSWERS ATTLEE

He told the House that Britain "has received repeated assurances from Gen. Franco on all points raised" by labor leader Clement R. Attlee—the presence of Italian and German troops in Spain and wheth

Although the conclave of Cardinals will vote four times each day until a two-thirds majority is attained, smoke from the Sistine Chapel stove—traditional indicator of progress within the conclave—will be sent up only twice each day.

Elopement Bride, 19, Sues Her Boy Hubby

Love was wonderful a year ago, when they eloped, but today Mrs. Ruth Corkery Woodward, who is only 19, asked separate support from George Woodward, 20, son of a wealthy Rockland manufacturer.

The year, in addition to a baby, has brought her heartache and disillusionment, according to her testimony in Middlesex probate court in Cambridge.

Never has she been invited into his parents' home, she said, and his parents even tried to have him go on a Florida vacation with another girl they had picked out for him—to break up the marriage, she claimed.

It has broken up, anyway, she testified, because since August 17 she has seen her youthful husband only once. That was when he called to tell her that what his lawyer already had told her was true—that he was through.

In January a year ago, Ruth Corkery of Mt. Auburn street, Cambridge, went on a hitch-hike elopement with Woodward, son of Ernest C. Woodward, one of the operators of the Rockland Webbing company.

Several days later there came a telegram back from Florida to Ruth's mother from the couple, stating that "you have a new son-in-law."

That was on January 22, 1938, but in court today Ruth testified that they were not married until January 31, and in Yonkers, N. Y.

Asked if she had proof of the marriage, the blue-eyed, pretty blonde said it was in her husband's wallet and that he told her he had sold the wallet, proof and all, for 10 cents.

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE C. WOODWARD

ASKS FULL STUDY OF PENSION BILLS

Walter V. McCarthy, state commissioner of public welfare, today recommended to the legislative committees on pensions and finance, sitting jointly on 32 bills, that a special recess committee study all pending bills instead of merely attempting "to patch a house."

He especially opposed a bill of Senator Albert Cole, Lynn, which would set up special boards in all cities of more than 25,000 for administration of old age assistance.

At present this function rests with welfare boards.

"If this bill became law it would cost the cities of Massachusetts more than half a million dollars to set up the proposed machinery for administration of old age assistance," McCarthy stated.

"I suggest the legislative Committee on Pensions be set up as a special recess commission to study the entire subject. Some of the bills that have been filed are good and should be carefully examined."

Others who opposed the Cole bill included Joseph T. Mulcahy of the Waltham welfare board and Daniel A. Murphy of the Boston public welfare board.

Both opposed it on the same ground as did McCarthy.

Mulcahy declared more consideration should be given dependent children by the state.

Maybe Rival Set Fire to Halt Bridal

LIVERMORE, Calif., Feb. 28 (AP)—Rev. Clarence Sands had reached that point in the marriage ceremony where you can speak up or forever hold your peace if you have any objections.

"The house is on fire," a neighbor shouted.

That seemed a good reason, so the ceremony stopped while firemen extinguished a roof blaze. Then Bertha Carlson and Milton Fisher were joined in wedlock.

HUG KILLS CO-ED, BOY LOVE-SUICIDE; SCHOOLS BLAMED

JOLIET, Ill., Feb. 28—Their auto radio was blaring "hot" swing music as a high school athlete and his 17-year-old sweetheart, a high school junior, died in each others' arms in a Lovers' Lane parking spot here, Coroner Lonus Brannon revealed today.

At the same time, he presented concrete evidence in support of his charge that "shocking" conditions at Joliet high school and junior college were in part to blame for the double Lovers' Lane tragedy.

"High school students questioned at the inquest testified that high school girls, 14 to 16 years old, were taken to hotels by older men afternoons after school," Coroner Brannon said.

He asked Circuit Judge Edwin Wilson to appoint a special prosecutor to probe moral conditions at the high school and present his findings to the jury.

Wm. Engimann

Victims of the Lovers' Lane tragedy were William Engimann, 18, 200-pound captain elect of the high school football team, and pretty, auburn-haired Ruth Virginia Underwood, 17, a junior at the high school.

The girl's body was unclad, except for shoes and stockings.

Coroner Brannon said Miss Underwood died of strangulation, probably resulting accidentally from a "passionate embrace."

Engimann's death was due to carbon monoxide poisoning and was suicide, according to the coroner.

ARM STILL AROUND GIRL

He revealed that, when the bodies were found, Engimann's arm was still around the girl's neck and the radio of the auto was still playing.

It had been tuned in on one of Chicago's "hottest" swing bands.

As Coroner Brannon reconstructed the deaths, Engimann, not realizing his own strength, accidentally killed his schoolgirl sweetheart as he embraced her too fervently.

Overcome by remorse, young Engimann then turned on the auto engine and committed suicide by inhaling carbon monoxide, according to the coroner's theory.

Assailing conditions at the high school, Brannon said:

"Testimony given before me indicated that teachers and the high school board have been lax in

Blind Taxi Man's Wife To Get Job

Her husband blinded and helpless, a "living monument of warning to all drunken drivers," dark-eyed young Mrs. Loretta Eldridge of Jamaica Plain proved herself today a "living monument of wifely loyalty and faithfulness."

Out of bed before daylight, she bustled briskly around the Eldridge home in Ellsworth street, catching up on work she had to leave undone yesterday while she led her sightless husband to Roxbury court to face drunken driving and reckless driving charges.

The charges grew out of an accident December 19, when Francis W. Eldridge, then a taxi driver, drove head-on into a street car in Columbus avenue.

One of his eyes was gouged out and he lost three-quarters of the sight of the other.

Judge Miles found Eldridge guilty of drunken driving, a second offense, but let him off with a six months suspended sentence.

"I think this man has suffered enough," the judge said. "He's a living monument of warning to all drunken drivers."

But that was yesterday.

Today, Mrs. Eldridge faced the future.

After she had prepared breakfast for her three daughters and one son, all high school or junior high school pupils, she prepared and served her husband's breakfast.

Her home was in apple-pie order when she told a Boston Evening American reporter:

"First thing I'm going to do is get a job.

"I'm able, intelligent, a good housekeeper and a good cook. I'll work as a waitress if I have to.

"There's no use refusing to face facts about my husband. He will never be able to work again. Not only has he lost his sight but he has lost his courage. He is near a nervous breakdown.

Saltonstall Still Confined to Bed

Governor Saltonstall, suffering from tonsilitis, was ordered to stay in bed at home again today, and probably will be unable to get to the State House tomorrow.

LOVERS' LANE DEATH CAR—In this car the Joliet, Ill., high school romance of Bill Engimann, 18, and Ruth Underwood, 17, ended in death . . . the boy committing suicide after his frenzied hug killed the unclad girl.

D. A. R. Unaware 1st Lady Has Quit

National headquarters of the Daughters of American Revolution have, as yet, failed to receive any notice from Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt that she has resigned, it was stated here today.

Mrs. Frank Leon Nason, national registrar of the society, in Boston for a junior D. A. R. conclave, said such a communication would naturally be addressed to her, and none had been received.

Even if Mrs. Roosevelt actually has resigned, according to Miss Ethel Lane Hersey of Hingham, state regent, her action won't affect the loyalty of Massachusetts members.

Miss Hersey said she thought there had been grievous misunderstanding of the D. A. R. action in refusing the use of Constitution Hall in Washington to Marian Anderson, colored contralto. It is over that incident Mrs. Roosevelt was reported to have resigned.

"It has never been the policy of the D. A. R. to make public information as to members who might resign," she said. "I have no knowledge that Mrs. Roosevelt has resigned from our organization. As I understand it, she declines to name the organization.

"It appears from newspaper articles, that there is a misunderstanding so far as the D. A. R.'s action in the case of Miss Anderson is concerned. Refusal of those in charge of Constitution Hall, in Washington, should not be construed as any reflection on Miss Anderson or her ability as a singer.

"I happen to know that the hall was engaged for Easter Sunday before Miss Anderson's manager, or booking bureau, applied for that date.

"Our society had no choice. The national membership of the D. A. R. is approximately 142,000 and we have about 6300 members in Massachusetts."

Singer Grateful For Sympathy

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 28 (AP)—Marian Anderson, Negro contralto now on tour, said here today she was "not surprised" by reports Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt had quit the Daughters of the American Revolution because that organization snubbed the singer.

Miss Anderson, in a statement issued through her manager, J. A. Jofe, referred to the D. A. R.'s recent refusal of the use of Constitution Hall in Washington for a concert.

The statement said:

"I am not surprised at Mrs. Roosevelt's action, because she seemed to me to be one who really comprehended the true meaning of democracy. I'm shocked beyond words to be barred from the capital of my own country after having appeared in almost every other capital in the world."

POPULAR—Sally Rand, shown above in partial deshabille, has struck a gold mine at the San Francisco Fair. Her "nude ranch" heads the list of money makers.

Sally Rand's 'Nude Ranch' Brings Suit

NEW YORK, Feb. 28 (INS)—Billy Rose, the night club impresario, today claimed to be the inspiration behind Sally Rand's exhibits of feminine nudity.

And to establish this claim, Rose sought an injunction to prohibit Sally from arranging for any further exhibits such as her "nude ranch" at the San Francisco Fair and giving him a share of the profits to date.

SALLY TELLS 'EM

Papers were served on Sally when she arrived in New York for a talk with Grover Whalen's amusement experts concerning a similar display at the New York World's Fair.

"There will be no nude ranch at the fair here if there are any stipulations," she said positively. "No clothes or no nude ranch."

Miss Rand said a "sexhibition revue," featuring nude nymphs capering in a sea made with mirrors, also was considered during her conference.

HASN'T SEEN WHALEN

Just as if anything was arranged, she announced she would be glad to help out New York as well as San Francisco—only Mr. Whalen has got to let her girls cavort in the-er-er-nude.

It develops that Sally hasn't been approached personally by Mr. Whalen or by Mr. La Guardia, who is the mayor of New York, and also mighty interested in the Fair.

Miss Rand is told she can perhaps see Mr. Whalen some other time and that her application has been placed on file.

Rose claims he alone is entitled to use the name of "Sally Rand's Nude Ranch." He claimed he originated it for the Fort Worth Centennial Exposition in 1936.

Sally's Show Calls 55,449 In a Week

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 28 (AP)—Golden Gate Exposition officials bared some figures today revealing that Sally Rand's nude ranch attracted more cash customers the first week than any other concession.

They said 55,449 paid their way into the nude ranch. The next most popular concession attracted 27,086.

Sistie Copies Tongue Trick Of Roosevelts

NEW YORK, Feb. 28 (INS)—Washington is chuckling over the fact that Sistie Dall, President Roosevelt's favorite grandchild, is practicing to touch the tip of her nose with her tongue, just like her distinguished grandparents, a nationally circulated magazine declared today.

The story is that little Sistie was discovered in class sticking out her tongue. Here teacher asked her what she was doing.

"I'm trying to touch the tip of my nose with my tongue," replied Sistie unabashed. "My grandfather can do it, and my grandmother can do it. And now I'm practicing so I can do it."

Teachers Back Dance Bill

Several pretty dancing school teachers today appeared before the legislative committee on mercantile affairs to urge passage of a bill of James A. Shanahan to authorize the state department of public safety to regulate dancing academies with power to grant and revoke permits.

Among the group was Miss Frances Grant, recently returned from Hollywood, Alice Brooks of Allston, Marie Devone and Mae Sheridan. They told of instances of girls of 13 and 14 years of age who set themselves up as dancing teachers after taking a few lessons.

Riley Is Ousted In Bribe Hearing

missioner Richard D. Grant had charged "tremendous pressure" was being brought to "suppress" the investigation.

Today's testimony against Riley was interrupted when Chairman McKeown announced he believed "sufficient evidence" had been obtained.

The last witness, John Minnehan, a Somerville truckman, had named Riley as having personally participated, from start to finish, in the fraudulent "sale" of a permit originally issued to a Leyden man.

Minnehan told the commission he visited the commercial vehicle division five times before a meeting was arranged with a man he named as Richard Mason of Leyden, who possessed an unlimited carrier permit. He said he received a telephone call from Riley telling him to come to the director's office.

SAYS PRICE $400

"Mr. Riley told me he knew there were going to be many protests on my application for an unlimited permit, and suggested I buy one from some party who had one. I asked Mr. Riley how much he thought it would cost and he told me he knew of such a party and would find out," Minnehan testified.

"Later, Mr. Riley said a man he knew would sell for $400. I told him I thought $400 was too steep, and he told me he would find out if he could get it cheaper. Later, he called me and told me that $400 was the lowest price."

A week later, Minnehan said, he raised the money and met Riley, and Riley introduced him to Mason.

HUNT 15 SEX TERRORISTS IN MURDER OF DANCER

DEATH DIRECTS—SLAIN ANYA SOSOYEVA (ON COUCH) IN COLLEGE PLAY
International News Photograph Service

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 28—Roundup of 15 sex terrorists was ordered today as weary police reached an end to likely clues in the murder of Anya Sosoyeva, former Ziegfeld dancer.

Fruitlessly they still searched for a possible jealous suitor, although veteran detectives today admitted that the 32-year-old blonde was probably fatally beaten by a man she never knew.

Police have been assigned to check all reports for the past two years of cases in which women had been attacked or robbed. Instances of "smashers" annoying co-eds also were under investigation.

The latest flurry of excitement came with the report the dying beauty twice muttered the name "Al" as an ambulance took her to a hospital. It was discovered that her sister's name is Alice. Just the same, police searched correspondence for a possible male friend by that name.

ACCOUNTANT QUIZZED

They were reluctant to abandon the theory the crime may have been committed by a "jealous suitor" or someone who bore a grudge.

Police said Kermit Anderson, 34, an accountant, admitted a fondness for her and had "kept company" with her for some time, but that he had not seen the Russian showgirl since last June.

The accountant gave detectives a detailed account of his movements last Friday night, when Anya was bludgeoned and ravished as she hurried across the campus to the college auditorium where she and other drama students were to appear in skits before an audience which included motion picture talent scouts from Hollywood.

LIFE A MYSTERY

Her life was as much a mystery to her family as her death is to the police and investigating authorities, her brother, Fred J. Susoff, told the authorities. Anya Sosoyeva was born Nina Susoff.

Only three times had he seen her in the past 20 years. The last time he and his wife attempted to question her the girl was evasive and hid her life from them. This was in January of last year, he said.

Ann Stanley, dramatics instructor and roommate of Miss Sosoyeva, was questioned by Capt. D. R. Patton, chief of the police homicide detail, and accounted for her whereabouts before and after the slaying Friday night.

GOVERNOR BANS CUT, FIRINGS

Governor Saltonstall today, through his secretary, Daniel J. Lynch, placed himself squarely in opposition to Republican Representative Albert S. Bigelow's proposal to save $10,000,000 this year through wholesale dismissals, pay cuts and a highway construction moratorium.

The secretary, before the legislative committee on ways and means, said for the governor, who is ill at home:

"The governor believes in keeping faith with the men and women who are the backbone of the state service.

"He believes that the wages of people working for the state should not be cut. He believes that those scheduled for step-rate increases should receive them."

Crowds thronged the State House as the legislative committee began its task of pruning Gov. Saltonstall's $150,000,000 biennial budget.

Chief target of the massed protests was the proposal of Bigelow, who is chairman of the committee.

DEMOCRATS FIGHT

"The governor hopes," Secretary Lynch told the committee, "that in your study of the budget you will make substantial savings, not only over the amounts requested by department heads for the next two years, but over last year's figures."

As the committee met to decide the fate of the record-breaking budget, it was assured that a mighty struggle would result before it would be decided whether Massachusetts will have an economy administration, or one of new and increased taxation.

The principle of pay-as-you-go or borrowing to meet demands was certain to bring more than one bitter clash.

At the same time, Representative Albert E. Morris, Democratic minority leader, waged a battle against both pay reductions and halting of highway construction work.

Loopers Flee In 2 Crashes

Despite Registrar of Motor Vehicles Goodwin's proposal to flog auto thieves, youthful "loopers" led police of two cities in mad chases during the night.

Both escapades ended in wrecks, during which the drivers escaped.

Two boys drove a stolen car around the South Boston loop, pursued by police, then crashed into a house in Lark street after skidding on ice. The thieves fled on foot.

At the height of the other chase, in Melrose, the stolen car burst into flame, collided at full speed into a police cruiser and careened into a field off Tremont street, Melrose.

Captured at gun point after a police chase in Chelsea, Raymond McManus, 27, Sea street, Everett, today was given Chelsea district court jail sentences totalling three years for attempted larceny of an automobile and for carrying a loaded revolver without a permit.

9-Mile Chase Nabs Boys

NEWBURYPORT, Feb. 28—Over seven miles of the Newburyport turnpike and for two winding miles through Newburyport streets, state troopers today pursued two Portland youths.

In Congress street, the youths were halted when their car, which carried only one number plate and that from New Hampshire, struck a curb.

During the zig-zagging through the city, several school children narrowly escaped being struck, troopers reported.

At police headquarters, the captives gave their names as William J. Frost, Jr., 18, of Carlton place, and Sherman E. Croy, 19, of Brackett street, both Portland.

They were booked on a charge of failing to stop on signal of an officer, but the troopers, William T. Knightly and Joseph Uzdavinis of Topsfield barracks, said other charges would be made.

Deadly Germs In Jap Brushes

Deadly anthrax germs have been found in the bristles of shaving brushes stamped "Imperial, Sterilized, Japan, 332," Dr. Paul J. Jakmuh, state public health commissioner, today warned.

With 35,000 brushes of this brand made in Japan on sale in this country and one case of the disease in another state traced to the brushes, Dr. Jakmuh today warned Massachusetts residents against using any shaving brush coming from the infected shipment.

Anthrax, usually contracted by using raw hides, is a rare disease in Massachusetts. Four cases, one of them fatal, were reported in 1938.

SUMMER HOME BURNS

Fire early today destroyed the West Newbury summer home of George W. Poirier of Bay State road, Back Bay, with an estimated loss of $5000.

British Kill 16 in Holy Land Clash

JERUSALEM, Feb. 28 (AP)—British troops, acting to put down a new wave of Arab-Jewish terrorism in which 34 persons had been slain this week, killed 16 men today in a battle with a large armed band on the northern frontier of Palestine. Royal airforce warplanes aided the soldiers.

Another disastrous bomb explosion in Jerusalem probably was averted when police seized a time bomb in the David Street Market where three persons were killed and six wounded in explosions yesterday.

The bomb was suspended from an air hole in the roof of the market.

Two Jews were killed and three others injured in a new attack by an Arab band.

An Arab strike was declared in Haifa in protest against the latest bombings. Most of the Haifa stores and offices were closed.

Determination to fight the introduction of minority status for Jews in Palestine, as suggested by the British during an Arab-Jewish peace conference in London, was the keynote of an urgently summoned conference of leading Jewish representatives.

The conference w called to define the Jewish attitude.

Arabs regarded the founding of an independent Arab state as an accomplished fact.

Resentment over the new bombings was expressed strongly in Jerusalem newspapers. One paper commented:

"The victims will be registered before Allah and on the pages of Arab history; they are the innocent victims of mean murderers."

Britain Jumps Arms Spending

LONDON, Feb. 28 (AP)—Britain countered the German submarine construction program with a boost in 1939 naval estimates today and disclosed she was paying special attention to empire defenses.

The admiralty called for £153,666,681 (about $768,333,405) for the 1939-40 fiscal year starting April 1, official naval estimates showed. For the 1938-39 fiscal year, ending March 31, the figure was £123,707,000 ($618,535,000).

Special mention of defenses in Australia, South Africa, Canada and Hongkong was made by the Earl of Stanhope, first lord of admiralty, in a statement accompanying the estimated.

WALPOLE VISITS CARDINALS' CELLS

Hugh Walpole, famous novelist, herewith describes the area of the conclave and the very rooms where the cardinals will live while they ponder the selection of a new Pope.

By HUGH WALPOLE

World Copyright, 1939, By International News Service

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 28 (INS)—I have paid a final visit to the area of the conclave.

I saw the cells or rooms where the cardinals will live, the dining room where they will eat, the beautiful corridor where they will walk, the San Damaso courtyard which will b for them a kind of out-of-doors garden and the wonderful Sistine Chapel where the voting will take place.

The first thing that interested me was that the room allotted to Cardinal Pacelli, one of the most favored candidates, has thirteen for its number. Cardinal O'Connell drew number 44, Cardinal Mundelein 54 and Cardinal Dougherty six.

ROOMS ARE SIMPLE

No rooms could be simpler than the cells in the Vatican palace. Each is furnished with an iron bedstead, one armchair, a washstand, a prayer stool, a plain chest of drawers and a Crucifix. There will be several exceptions to this, special privileges of comfort having been accorded to the American Cardinals.

Cardinal O'Connell who will arrive early tomorrow morning will have a room close to the Sistine Chapel. Since this room has been recently occupied by the monsignori, it has a number of comforts and a splendid library of books.

Cardinal Mundelein will have a fine large, red plush chair and a comfortable bath room. Cardinal Dougherty also will be allowed a comfortable chair.

The only difference in sleeping arrangements made for the cardinals and their secretaries will be that the cardinals are allowed two mattresses and the secretaries one. The beds all have several white wool blankets.

ELABORATE CANDELABRA

A number of the cells will be in the older part of the conclave area, and will therefore have elaborate candelabra, and beautiful vases, many of them dating from the 4th and 5th centuries. All the cells will have modern radiators.

To my mind one of the finest rooms in the whole of Vatican City is the Borg A Hall. This contains magnificent tapestries and paintings by Pinturicchio, special favorites of mine because of their lovely soft colors and the perfect harmony they give the whole room.

U. S. Recognition Of Franco Near er Spain would come under control of the Rome-Berlin axis.

The prime minister defended recognition of the Franco regime against a labor motion of censure and a bitter attack on him by Attlee, who accused him of a "smart trick."

Chamberlain denied Attlee's charge that he had violated a pledge to give Commons first news of a decision on recognition.

CALLED "DICTATOR"

Attlee styled Chamberlain's speech yesterday justifying recognition a "tissue of half truths which are worse than lies," and sharply compared him with a dictator "addressing a Fascist grand council."

In reply, the prime minister asserted that Attlee has misquoted a speech by French Premier Daladier in attempting to show that the cabinet had told the French government of its recognition decision before it informed Commons.

Azana Resigns, Successor Spurns Job

COLLOGNES - SOUS - SALEVE, France, Feb. 28 (AP) — Manuel Azana, in a letter made public today, resigned as president of the Spanish Republican government.

The letter was addressed to Diego Barrio, president of the Cortes (parliament) and Azana's constitutional successor.

Negrin Calls Cabinet For Vital Conference

MADRID, Feb. 28 (AP)—Premier Negrin of Spain summoned cabinet ministers to an unidentified village in the eastern district today for what was called a 'most important' meeting.

TUNIS SET FOR WAR, ITALIAN PAPERS CLAIM

ROME, Feb. 28 (INS)—Sensational dispatches describing Tunis, capital of the French protectorate of Tunisia in North Africa, as making major preparations for war were carried by Italian newspapers today.

The newspaper Piccolo appeared with a glaring headline:

"Tunis is in a full state of war."

Il Messagero also described Tunis as completely prepared for conflict, with trenches lining the streets and armed sentinels posted at bridges and gasoline stations.

Publication of the reports coincided with apprehension in diplomatic circles Italy may shortly renew her territorial demands upon France. Tunisia is one of the key African areas involved in the Fascist demands.

TUNIS, Tunisia, Feb. 28 (AP)—Two Tunisian natives were reported killed and several wounded today in a skirmish with French gendarmes behind French defense lines facing Italian Libya.

This was the first evidence of disorder in the protectorate since reports of a frontier clash February 17 between French and Italian troops — reports denied by both countries.

Cardinal Nears Goal Of Journey

NAPLES, Feb. 28—William Cardinal O'Connell today neared Italian shores, fatigued by 5000 miles of sea travel, but determined to reach Vatican City in time to cast his ballot in the election of the new Pope.

The American Prince of the Church was sailing across a smooth Mediterranean from Algiers to this port, where he is scheduled to debark from the liner Neptunia early tomorrow morning.

It was understood that the Boston prelate would leave by automobile for a 155-mile dash to Rome as soon as the Neptunia arrived.

The conclave of Cardinals is scheduled at noon tomorrow and the Italian government has offered every facility to speed Cardinal O'Connell to his destination.

Election of New Pope Before Sunday Seen

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 28 (AP)—Cardinals arranged their affairs today for voluntary imprisonment in the conclave to elect a new Pope which starts tomorrow.

Vatican circles thought the conclave itself might be hastened with the possibility a new Pope would be elected before Sunday.

The cardinals already have had more time to consider a choice within their own minds than when Pius was elected 15 days after the death of Benedict XV.

Smart Set Functions

By BETTY ALDEN

WE OFTEN MENTION parties that run into the wee small hours . . . but it very seldom happens that a play goes on until after midnight . . . If the hundreds of curious spectators who saw the celebrities arriving at "Five Kings" at the Colonial last evening had stayed around the lobby till 12:30 they would have seen more notables come out . . . for during the last intermission the whole cast of "Susan and God" piled in to add their share of cheering and applause for Orson Welles and his cast in the new Theater Guild production . . .

The theater was packed for the world premiere . . . with practically everybody arriving in the nick of time for the early curtain . . . Emily Saltonstall, daughter of the Governor, topped her simple black dinner gown with a cosy tweed coat and handed in her tickets just ahead of Cornelia Menard, who was resplendent in a Grecian white pleated model with orchids tucked in her curls and on her shoulder . . .

A novel guimpe dress of violet with an orchid blouse fashioned Polly Gardiner's unusual outfit, and her mother, Mrs. T. Mitchell Hastings, was a bright figure in royal blue with fuchsia flowers on the front . . .

The opening attracted a number of theatrical luminaries from New York and naturally everybody crowded around to get a peek at glamorous Gertrude Lawrence sitting in the back row with her leading man, Paul Magrath . . . Mrs. Orson Welles slipped in so quietly that few recognized her, and after checking the jacket of her dark suit set to work in the wings as though she were a member of the company . . . Olivia Ames and her beau had a smoke during each intermission . . . her luscious sapphire blue tulle gown made with a matching sequin bodice . . . Vinton Freedley, Jr., was another youthful celebrity in the throng and others present were Mrs. Phister Cowin, with a coral ornament brightening her black lace and chiffon gown; Mrs. Roland M. Hopkins, Mrs. Roger Warner, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Hastings, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Vallendar, Jr., Betty Bell in a festive yellow gown with violet pansies in her hair, and Mrs. Theodore Lyman Eliot . . .

PREMIERE ATTRACTS SOCIETY'S FAIREST DAUGHTERS

Junior Leaguers' Work Praised

EVEN WITH ALL the activities of her crowded life, the modern girl still finds time to become adept in the feminine arts at which Grandma was so skilled . . .

Junior Leaguers take great pride in their handiwork and each year at this time hold an exhibition of the results of their artistic efforts . . . Exquisite pieces of hand made jewelry, carved cigarette boxes, designs for formal gardens and original music manuscripts are as much a part of the current show which opened yesterday, as the water colors and oil paintings . . . which are the piece de resistance of every art exhibit . . .

Rosamond Pier of Milton, whose painting ability has been progressing steadily since her debutante days, achieved the singular honor of winning both first and second prize in the water colors . . . a significant award considering that the pictures are unidentified when the judges view them, and are chosen for merit alone . . . Sylvia Van Ness, an artist's daughter, was runner-up for third prize . . .

Eleanor Roosevelt, niece of the First Lady, has found time during her many debutante activities, to make some clever and unusual drawings . . . she entered three in the show but two were disqualified because of not being properly mounted . . . The third, entitled A Quick Sketch from Life, drew many admiring comments from yesterday's visitors at the League gallery . . .

Louise Fry has a wide variety of accomplishments . . . exhibiting not only an exquisite hand made screen, but a lovely embroidered cover for a fireside seat, hand wrought pewter sugar and creamer and several charming little pottery figures . . .

B. & M. Freight Revenues Gain

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW
Financial Editor

The deficit shown by the Boston & Maine R. R. for January in the report out today is overshadowed by the good improvement in operating revenues . . . And at the same time the actual loss after fixed charges is smaller than most expected it would be . . .

Detailed figures compared with last year show that freight revenues increased 26.09 per cent . . . Express revenues by 69.45 per cent . . . While passenger and mail revenues dipped 8.36 and 12.09 per cent respectively . . . The result was a net gain of $576,532, or 17.74 per cent, over the same month a year ago . . . A deficit of $21,607 after charges is rightfully submerged by such evidences of traffic improvement . . .

SEC. REPORTS . . . Reveal that Morrie Joseloff is a large holder of First National Stores, of which he is an officer . . . Also that Nathan R. Maas, a director of Gillette Safety Razor Co., held a large block of the company's preferred stock and a fair sized amount of the common at the end of 1938 . . . It is also notable that large personal holding companies are being liquidated by their owners . . . The trend is well defined in recent reports by the security regulatory body . . .

TELEVISION . . . Is making larger strides toward everyday use than casual comments of the industry's leaders indicate . . . For instance we understand that Radio Corp's plant at Harrison, N. J., is producing about 150 sets per day . . . Further, this plant, which is devoted to the production of radio and television tubes, will be shortly changed over to television sets exclusively . . . If true that means a potential output of 600 sets per day . . . Retailing plans as we hear them call for pricing of these sets between $150 to $225 each . . . At which price observers think demand will easily absorb supply . . .

NOTEBOOK . . . Engineers Public Service continues a favorite with traders . . . Who will quickly climb aboard when the utility group shows anything . . . Estimates for this year place earnings in the vicinity of $1.10 a share . . . At the moment we hear recommendations to switch into it from other similar issues selling at comparable price levels . . .

Commercial Solvents has had a nice run on the upside for a low priced stock . . . But reactions are still used for buying . . . By those who think its outlook is changed for the better . . . New products is the answer . . . One, for instance, being the rumored new vitamin "G" . . . For use in animal foods . . .

MARKET ACTION . . . Still very much on the favorable side . . . The 146-147 area on the Dow-Jones industrial index is touted as a rally "stopper" by bears . . . But when is the mystery . . . Upturns in recent months have either carried through that zone or fallen short of it . . . The one to watch is between 150-155 on the same index . . . Serious liquidation there would be definitely unsettling . . .

RUKEYSER

The Cost of Doing a Favor

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER
International News Service Economic Commentator

NEW YORK, Feb. 28—The concept of a balanced national economy places a new orientation on the complaints of retailers of diversions of business from their channels.

If the cost of doing a favor in getting it wholesale for a friend or an employe is to contribute a disorganization of the way of life of large groups engaged in legitimate retailing, then the whole practice should be reviewed.

Some corporations and banks evidently make it a practice to permit their purchasing agents to buy at discounts for employes, and others work with more or less legitimate distributors.

This whole tendency should be re-studied in light of the need of keeping the whole population, which is subject to gainful employment, in productive work. When the population is so employed, the nation is prosperous.

The retailers are not only distributors for the products of manufacturers, but the millions engaged in trade are themselves customers for automobiles, washing machines, and other comfort goods and necessities. Accordingly, the policy of "live and let live" promotes the gross volume of business of the country.

If the effect of eliminating the legitimate retailer is to put him and his employees out of work, the policy is foolhardy from the standpoint of the national economy. Against the seeming small saving incidental to the alleged "wholesale" price must be set the social cost of carrying additional numbers of unemployed on relief.

It is like buying cheaper oriental matches than domestic matches, saving pennies, and as a result losing hundreds of dollars through displacing American labor, and being forced to carry unemployed workers on relief.

This whole problem of the diversion of trade must be related to basic long-term trends in American economic life.

For decades, with the improvement of machinery and power equipment, the whole tendency in American economic life has been to release men from primary production and to absorb them in the service occupations, including retailing and the related arts of merchandise, advertising and publishing.

Stock Prices Rally in Fast Trading

NEW YORK, Feb. 28 (INS)—The stock market rallied today, resuming its upward course after marking time in yesterday's mixed trading.

Gains ran from 1 to more than 2 points in pivotal issues, and trading picked up rapidly. All sections participated, with steels, rails and motors leading the way.

Further improvement in the principal European security markets prior to the New York opening furnished the initial stimulus to stocks locally. Foreign currencies were quiet, and most were a shade under last night's closings.

SEE TRADE BOOM OPENING APRIL 1

(Copyright, 1939, by International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28 (INS)—The United States is experiencing a "slight" recession which is due to disappear by April 1, to be followed by a "healthy" improvement in economic conditions, leading economists of the national capital told International News Service today.

The only stumbling block in the path of this healthy, though not necessarily strong, improvement in conditions is the bugaboo of European war, the economists agreed.

While most of the economists fought shy of making definite predictions, those who would go on record saw a general improvement with the advent of spring—with only the drawback of probably more threatening conditions in Europe to prevent it.

"There should be a favorable recovery from the current slight recession," said David C. Elliott, chief of the statistical and economic division of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, "unless war breaks out in Europe. No one can say what effect that would have but if war does not develop, the outlook is for a healthy situation, with indications that business for the year will average 8 to 10 per cent better than last year."

Cotton Cloth Demand Brisk

NEW YORK, Feb. 28 (AP)—Trading in Worth street turned active today and prices on most constructions advanced ⅛ cent. Demand was general and buying mostly for nearby delivery. Based on the forenoon trading pace, it was estimated cotton goods sales for the day would reach 20,000,000 yards.

EARNINGS

NEW YORK, Feb. 28 (AP)—The Homestake Mining Co. and subsidiaries reported today net profit of $6,940,848 for 1938 after depreciation, depletion, taxes, etc. This was equal to $3.45 a share on the capital stock, against $7,188,854 or $3.58 a share in 1937.

Gillette Safety Razor Co. and its subsidiaries reported 1938 profit after depreciation, interest, taxes, etc., of $2,941,869. This equals, allowing for preferred dividend requirements, 72 cents a share on 1,988,769 common shares, against $4,507,159 or $1.50 a share in the previous year.

Servel, Inc., mechanical refrigerator manufacturers, reported for the fiscal quarter ended Jan. 31 net profit of $278,484, equal to 15 cents a share on the common, compared with $33,183, or one cent a share in the comparative quarter a year ago.

Love

Risky to Marry Without Love

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been going steady with a young man. I am only 21. He says he loves me very much and wants me to marry him, but I'm not sure because I do not love him. He is on a level with me and that is one thing I want but I don't know if we would be wise to have a chance of happiness with him after. I may not. What do you advise? EVELYN

It is pretty risky to experiment with marriage in the way you are thinking that love will grow after you are married. Perhaps that way does sometimes, but it is a chance to take. It is unfair to the man to take his name and all of life's privileges and not give him love in return. Why not wait for love?

BEAUTIFUL GLORIA DEFIES HOLLYWOOD

What Has Happened:

GLORIA NEWCOMBE, beautiful film actress, the nation's glamour girl, refuses to star in a motion picture glorifying the romantic Northland.

Because the picture contains scenes from Alaska's great salmon industry, Gloria loses her temper. She despises fish, she says. The mere sight of them [illegible]

Mac Wurtzberg, her Hollywood agent, interested in signing her to a lucrative contract, is stunned and disturbed by her cool rejection of fame and fortune.

Now Continue:

CHAPTER TWO

Gloria's prima donna attitude passed quickly through Hollywood. The news soon reached the ears of the celluloid industry's higher-ups.

Naturally, J. Coddington Rapaport, executive vice-president of Important Pictures, Inc., lost no time in telephoning Mac Wurtzberg, Gloria's agent.

'You know,' Rapaport boomed over the wire, 'I think we need a lot of new blood in our studios. Audiences grow weary of old voices and faces. Audiences want a complete change of scenery. They pay for what is new. You can't keep on giving them the same thing year after year. See what I mean?'

'I've been thinking that for some time myself, J. C., but I didn't want to say anything because—'

'Yeah, yeah, yeah. So now between you and me I'm talking [illegible] a new star with a fresh face, a new singing, dancing, the unspoiled type, one of those simple daughters of nature or maybe from a small town at least—you know what I mean?'

This conversation began to make sense to Mac. He certainly did know what J. C. meant.

'Sure, J. C., I see what you mean,' he purred. 'Somebody to step into the lead in that salmon epic, or whatever it was, since Gloria Newcombe ain't interested.'

Say, that's something like a little more interesting. I'm back of She wouldn't be interested. Forgot about Gloria. Will give me a ring some time next week if you happen to run across a type to do what's for the right type out. You know me. But forget Newcombe.'

'Sure sure J. C. Well I'll keep an eye out off and on. Good-by.'

GLORIA OBJECTS

There was a [illegible] Mac bed and as he hung up the [illegible] his eye staring back at him with an expression of [illegible] that made him furious. They're desperate!' he cried. 'I can smell this herring a mile.' He grinned into the mirror and dialed Gloria's number.

'Hello?' came her voice like some exquisite far-off bell.

'Hello kid. How are you?'

'What—is that [illegible] Mac?'

'Yeah, yeah, of course it's me. You feeling good?'

'Mac! You've been talking to all ayes! I've Have you?'

'Who, me? Should I wade my time talking to you? Listen kid I want to tell you something. Please me. You want to spoil the [illegible] by [illegible] and I want our industry that things over at important are simply red-hot. They're wild kid, wild! We've got them to a point now where they'll be willing to sign you at double your [illegible] and with any support you want. They're howling for you!'

'Mac.'

'What? What is the matter?'

'Mac I want to ask you one thing. Just one little thing. It isn't important—understand? Just a whim of mine only a whim. You know how we girls are about our whims, things.'

Mac put one of his hands to his head. It was beginning to feel as if there were an echo coming.

'What—what—Gloria. Anything at all. You know me.'

'Just one thing. No fuss?'

'Now listen, Gloria, I've tried, and I've tried, and I've continued, and I've done everything a reasonable man could, and now I won't [illegible] that I've just come to the point where—Hey! Hello! Operator! Hello?'

But the phone only burned mockingly on his ear and a scathing was in his eyes.

When a few minutes later a relaxed Gloria sank into the little rolling waves up west her gently, it was cool and wonderfully good. No worries here, nothing at all but the light of coming with water and all of springing muscles and supple strength.

She bowed a long, high sweep her arms over her head and pointed straight down till she touched the bottom of the pool. Mm! Nice down here. Then she shot up to the surface, slapped the water into a shower of sparkling drops and laughed with joy as they came tinkling down on her head.

A pair of [illegible] red-rimmed eyes watched her from the rail of the pool. Where Gloria moved, they moved; what Gloria did, they reflected within themselves like a pair of faithful mirrors. "Ah me!" said the eyes, or would have said if eyes were capable of saying anything. Alas!

"This woman," said the eyes, "is young, happy, healthy and the cleanest thing in a bathing suit we have ever seen. Little does she know or care of the woes of life. And why? Because she hasn't observed them right from the center, as we have. We are miserable!"

Gloria sporting at her heated herself up over the living board and [illegible] out in the sun. Mm! Positive! She sat and up into the bright blue lake of the sky. Not the faintest whiff of a cloud anywhere past, chest, perfect, infinite. Her panting breath subsided, she breathed more and more slowly, and closed her eyes. What a nice world! What a good world!

"Umph!" said the sad red-rimmed eyes never moving from their steadfast and woeful contemplation.

The Life of Christ

CHAPTER THREE

Into the night and danger fled the Holy Family as Herod pondered a horrible command.

By COLLIN CLINE

WICKED HEROD was angry but God the Father in Heaven was mightier. As the Wise Men rested in Bethlehem after their visit to the new-born Saviour, God appeared to them in a dream and warned that they were in no case to return to Herod or to tell him they had found Jesus.

And at the same time God addressed Joseph, saying:

"Arise and take the young Child and His mother and flee into Egypt and be thou there until I bring thee word: for Herod will seek the young Child to destroy Him."

Joseph rose quickly and, wakening Mary, told her that they must set forth at once on a long journey. Down the old road by which caravans had traveled in centuries past, fled the Holy Family. Without food or companion they made their perilous way over desert sands, and mountain. But God was with them and protected them.

In due time Herod was exceedingly angry when the Wise Men failed to report to him. Nor did his wrath diminish with the passing of days. At length he gave a terrible command.

Forth he ordered his soldiers, "and kill with the sword every male child in Bethlehem two years old or under."

Human minds cannot imagine the sorrow there was in Bethlehem as the troops came with their drawn knives, pulled babies from their mothers' breasts, slew them and flung their bodies in the streets.

These poor little murdered children have been remembered ever since as the Holy Innocents.

Today's picture shows the Holy Family leaving a mountain pass on their way into Egypt. It was painted a half-century ago by Virginie Weirum Bergeret, a great French artist, who died in 1910.

TOMORROW, one of the most beautiful chapters in Christ's life will be told, and a painting by one of the most gifted men of all time will illustrate it.

TENOR GIGLI, attacking the United States in a Paris interview, has invited the unkind remarks that are being made about him.

America is "open" to appreciation from those she has befriended and closed to dealings with those who fail to show it.

For years American dollars were an attractive sight to Tenor Gigli. The record contains no mention of his ever seeing anything wrong with them, particularly those that went into his own pocket.

But now, at the twilight of his career, he is reported to have said that on this side of the Atlantic the Metropolitan Opera Company and various contemporary artists, particularly Toscanini, "are not worth Gigli thinks.

The Real Hopkins -1-

by HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—It would be easy to say a lot of smeary things about Harry Hopkins' Des Moines speech. It carried an odor of political demagoguery . . . appeal to the unemployed, to labor, to farmers and above all an effort to dig back into the rich, deep, rugged Western soil of Iowa which is naturally attentive and sympathetic to . . . farmer's . . . and agrarian . . . as most of us in the . . . are.

With these few kind words as a prelude, I am about to commit one of my famous interferences and plug for Harry Hopkins—and if he gets away with his job and restores recovery to the United States a continuous plug from now on.

As several . . . have . . . pointed . . . out, . . . spread . . . Hopkins . . . has come to the conclusion that it can live only if it succeeds in restoring the dynamo of the capitalist system which it has done so much to destroy—that a man, by his own efforts, can make a reasonable profit and keep a reasonable part of it.

I THINK Mr. Hopkins has done enough to show that whatever he does will be accomplished with a . . . unlimited punch. If he is really . . . interested in . . . American business activity, I have more than a hunch he will do it.

There is naturally a national question mark on Mr. Hopkins. His best friends wish that he would cease his amateur Presidential political antics if for no other reason than that it is a lot too early. But this man's heart and mind are in the right places.

It was sent to Charles Bedeaux.

Austen Lake:

Sudden Genesis vs. Gradual Creation

I AM INFORMED, ON CREDITABLE but not unimpeachable authority, that Paul Bowser, the genial mat manipulator and harness-horse dilletante, is still hoping to take the Hambletonian away from Goshen, N. Y., and give it to Suffolk Downs. One can appreciate Paul's good neighbor policy in bidding for the harness classic, but the Hambletonian belongs in the Dickensonian surroundings of Goshen, and not in the studied artificialities of Suffolk. For, in my modest opinion the pure urban beauties of Goshen in its Big Moment bespeaks the typica' American sport scene even more than the Kentucky Derby, the World Series, the Yale-Harvard boat race or a championship prize fight.

AUSTEN LAKE

Goshen preserves the perfume of the 19th Century before this nation went stream-lined. There its Reuben Glues, city smoothies and the intermediate life of Perkins Corners touch finger-tips with Times Square. For at Goshen, one day each year, 30,000 strangers unload in its drowsy purlieus—by train, buckboard, buggy, or slinky foreign motor. The wide main street is lined with time-stained brick homes and green close cropped lawns Time hangs suspended. Sanity rules.

[illegible] created in 40 days from a [illegible] the genesis of Goshen [illegible] patient people and contented [illegible] a masterpiece of scenic surgery, a dimple [illegible] Paul Bowser grew in accidental glory. The [illegible] and wives moaning to gossip and beyond [illegible] fast away in ornamental vistas. Roosters crow. Elders whittle. Hounds doze. Leisure reigns.

Hayseed Horse Heaven

AS WITH ALL COMMERCIAL RACE TRACKS of this region Suffolk Downs was reared in optimism and dedicated to the inherent wickedness of a speedthrift people. It was built on faith in the incurable urge of the citizens wish to gamble hard money for heartburn and internal twitches. It is a scene which as creator imagined from a state of wasteland I wrote when he said:

"Let there be a great, green-gambled grandstand with cash cubicles to soak up the people's funds. Vast parking spaces, let there be and trim stables for the horse herds and a clubhouse for gorgeous females and masculine butterflies."

And it was even so. Suffolk's creator looked upon his work and saw that it was good.

But the long years built Goshen. Time tinted it. Nature prettied it. And Man came to dwell as the good earth's tenant and made the horse his utilitarian partner in the open fields. Man bred the horse for service and gradually began racing him for fun. And so, into being came the Good Time race track, a triangular course laid in the meadows amid the haycocks and against a background of the far-tumbled Catskills. The sport grew as casually as that, and in time Goshen became the hayseed horse heaven of the U. S. A., where the swiftness of a sulky was more prized by local yokelry than the finest new-fangled motor contraptions.

BILL'S SPORT-O-GRIMES

Dugal, Siebert Co. Inspires Canadiens | Worked Wonders With Frenchmen

Introducing Mons. Jules Dugal, the silent man of Les Canadiens.

He'll be on the French bench tonight at the Garden, wearing a "Christy."

He's a veteran of Les Canadiens hockey campaigns. But, until he was elevated to co-coach, Dugal was known to less than one half of one percent of Montreal Les Canadiens enthusiasts.

He's never been talkative, even during the heyday when the Flying Frenchmen threatened to win the Stanley Cup annually and were the best box office attraction in hockey.

Jules Dugal's ability as an office executive was so well established that he weathered the change of ownership, which occured when Joe Cattarinich and Leo Dandurant relinquished their controlling interests in the club to that mysterious buyer.

Until Sylvio Mantha was appointed manager of Les Canadiens, Dugal seldom made any trips with the hockey club. Jules and Sylvio were men of few words and most of their conversation was in French. They were the most non-talkative couple ever identified with the "fastest game on earth."

Jules Dugal had been so successful in everything that he undertook from the time he joined Les Canadiens that when the powers that be disposed of Cecil Hart, he was made co-coach with Babe Siebert. He didn't seek the berth. Nor, did he have any knowledge that there was a change of managers in the offing.

He has never attempted, in all the years that he has been with the Frenchmen, to set himself up as an expert. He was perfectly content to sit back and listen to the alleged experts orate. He was the secretary of the club and realized that his duties didn't extend to the playing end of the game.

The Montreal fans were getting ready to "wake" Les Canadiens when Jules Dugal and Babe Siebert were assigned to take over the club, which had been in last place all season. Under Dugal and Siebert, the Flying Frenchmen have moved up one step in the league standing. They are now in sixth place, one point up on the Black Hawks, holders of the Stanley Cup.

In the event that Les Canadiens make the play-offs, Jules Dugal and Babe Siebert will establish themselves as miracle men but the former wants no part of the coaching business. He started in hockey as a member of the front office and if he has any say in the matter, he'll wind up his career paying hotel bills, buying railroad tickets and giving players advances on their salaries.

Claude Bourque, who is pinch hitting for the injured Wilf Cude in the Canadiens' nets, had a very fine week end . . . He allowed the streamline Rangers only one goal in 130 minutes . . . The Flying Frenchmen should be in better shape for tonight's game at the Garden than the Bruins . . . While the Rossmen were tossing around in the sleeper berths returning from Chicago last night, the Frenchmen were quartered at the Hotel Manger enjoying a much needed rest.

They came over from New York yesterday afternoon . . . Leopold Morse Goulston celebrated his 60th birthday yesterday . . . Accompanied by Jake Simons, another Dwight School boy, L. Morse will leave for Bradenton next Monday . . . Bill Stewart sat in on a hockey game down in Miami recently . . . He thought he was watching the Black Hawks . . . It's a trifle hot to play hockey in Miami . . . But, the boys are making a good show of the act.

Mission High School of Roxbury has its work cut out for it during the coming New England Catholic High School basket ball championship, which will start on Friday at the Arena . . . But, if Mission High goes through Our Lady's of Newton, Monsignor Coyle High of Taunton, St. Bernard's of Fitchburg, Holy Rosary, Holyoke, St. Mary's, Claremont, N. H., De La Salle Academy, Newport, R. I. and St. Raphael Academy, Pawtucket, the Roxbury quintet will be fully entitled to top honors.

Early this morning, Jimmy Neary and "Doc" May were in the clubhouse at the 9th St. Grounds at Bradenton dishing out Bees uniforms . . . Oh yes, "Yo-Yo" was right on the job lending valuable assistance after he had donned his faded Bradenton "uni" . . . Stan Andrews, better known in Lynn as "Polo," is pounds under weight . . . He's making his third Southern trip with the Bees and is at the cross roads of his baseball career . . . He makes the grade this year or else.

Wait until you read Casey Stengel's rating of Sebby Sisti, the Hartford third baseman, who is in the Land of Sunshine with the Bees . . . "Ole Case" has never seen Sisti . . . But, he'll really see something when he takes a peek at the 18-year-old Buffalo kid . . . Bill Dickey is in the Yankee fold but Ed Barrows is still waiting for Joe DiMaggio's, Joe Gordon's and Red Rolfe's contracts.

DiMaggio and Gordon will be whipped into line, particularly the former after his experience of last season, but the Yankees will lay it on the line before Rolfe becomes a member in good standing . . . Confronted with the task of building a new club in six weeks, Casey Stengel used rare judgement when he refused to make any predictions as to his 1939 Bees.

Rogers Hornsby is peddling young ball players, who have enrolled in his baseball school, to the Cards and Browns . . . Looks like the P. G. A. championship is headed for San Francisco for Pinehurst cannot hope to outbid the Golden Gate golf enthusiasts . . . With 18 goals scored and six more games to play, Roy Conacher isn't doing badly for his freshman year in professional hockey . . . The Bruins have lost but two games in 19 starts at the Garden this season.

Bowlers Respond To Call

By WALTER KILEY

New England's bowling legions are flocking to the polls to enroll in the fourth annual Boston Evening American-Daily Record grand candlepin championships.

At this early stage it seems to be a foregone conclusion that the biggest field in eastern title history will take to the 66 alleys of Jack Stafford's Huntington Club during the March 25th-April 8th tourney.

The American-Record championships, open to every man, woman and high school boy and girl in New England, whether amateur or "open" in classification, have come to be recognized as the one major smashing fixture of the season.

With the result that no die-hard pinster would dream of passing them up.

FEW RULE CHANGES

So successful were the conditions of last year's mammoth candlepin congress, likewise held at Huntington Club, that the committee decided to continue the competition without any real changes.

The amateurs will once again roll among themselves in a division which constitutes by far the bigger bulk of the entries.

And again the "open" bowlers, those who either own, work in or are connected with bowling alleys, or who have outstanding records of scoring accomplishments behind them, will try for the large purses of cash prizes.

The amateurs have merchandise, trophy and medal prizes awaiting them. These prizes constitute the finest array in bowling records, worth in value thousands of dollars.

Heading the list are the 11 handsome and costly Gruen precision wrist watches, the valuable and most welcome contribution of Gruen Watch Company of Time Hill, Cincinnati. These Gruens are the very latest and most modern wafer thin models, which are only now appearing for the first time on the market.

LYNN BOWLERS HAVE DAY

The American-Record tourney reaches into the farthermost communities of New England. Kelley's All-Stars of Pittsfield are just one of many teams which come here annually from distant points.

Several cities have asked that special days be reserved for them with Lynn the first in with a bid for its own "Lynn Day."

Time is growing short. Within a day or two every bowling alley in New England will receive a large batch of entries, which will augment the blank appearing daily in the pages of the American and Record.

We urge clubs and societies, organizations, individuals and alley proprietors to shoot the blanks along to Jack Stafford at once.

Early entries catch the choice dates and starting times.

Maguire Named Eagles Coach

Fred Maguire, former big league star, was named baseball coach at Boston College.

The Rev. Patrick H. Collins, faculty director of athletics, announced that B. C. has chosen Maguire to direct the Eagles' diamond destinies, succeeding Frank McCrehan, who resigned for business reasons.

Maguire was graduated from Holy Cross in 1922 after playing three years of varsity baseball. He immediately joined the Giants and played under John McGraw for two seasons.

From 1924 to 1927 he played second base for Toledo of the American Association.

He was brought back into the big leagues by the Cubs with whom he performed in 1928. In 1929 he was sold to the Braves and performed at the keystone sack for three seasons.

THE KELLYS of Pittsfield will be back again. Just nosed out in the last three years of competition in the Boston Evening American-Daily Record bowling tournament at the Huntington Alleys, the Kellys will step to the line again and try for the open team title. They line up, left to right, front row, Petell, Kelly, Yoss and Hillard; back row, Bohn, King, Proper and Shultz.

Tom Casey on Arena Card

Tom Casey, kid brother of the world's heavyweight wrestling champion, will make his Arena debut tomorrow night in a feature 20-minute time limit bout which finds Lloyd Stewart, famed mat bad-man, providing the opposition.

The feature of the Sam Price show will be a two out of three falls clash between Rebel Bob Russell, Newport, R. I., and Manuel Cortez, fiery warrior from Spain.

The appearance of young Casey has added brilliance to an already colorful card which includes the return of Myer "Curly" Donchin, Jersey City, junior heavyweight champion of the world, in the semi-final.

Donchin will step in against Les Ryan from Fordham in a one-fall affair with a 30-minute limit. Since it is limited to 30 minutes and a single fall, Donchin's crown will not be at stake.

Others ready to join the parade of pachyderms into the Arena ring tomorrow night are King Kong Frankenstein, Dan Cady, Chief War Eagle, Fred Bruno and Lloyd Stewart.

Junior Olympics Battle B. C. Sextet

The Junior Olympics face a stiff test tomorrow night when the sextet takes on the Boston College varsity six in the feature game of an Arena double-header. In the other half of the twin bill, the Eagles' freshman team will face the Bay State All-Stars.

Johnny Rossi Has Quit Boxing Game | Bruins Have Young Club

JOHNNY ROSSI of Worcester has told Phil Buccola, who at one time managed him, that he has decided to retire after having been twice knocked out by Henry (Machine Gun) Chmielewski.

"My heart is as good as ever and I like to fight," Rossi told Buccola, "but I am unable to take punches on the jaw . . . It would be foolish for me to remain boxing under such conditions."

Bill Stewart isn't a bit sad over the complete collapse of the Black Hawks, the club he piloted to the World's hockey championship a year ago . . . Bill was paid off with a dismissal slip, and since then the Black Hawks have crashed . . . The scrappy Bruins will try to add the Canadiens to their list of victims at the Garden tonight . . . A large delegation of fans from Manchester, N. H., is coming to town to root for Art Ross' outfit . . . The Northern country is very much hockey minded.

The average age of the Bruins, according to statistics furnished me by one of the little Bostons, is 23 years 9 months.

"Of course," says my youthful statistician, "I am taking the ages of the players as they appear on the Bruins' program . . . I understand that some of the older players sometimes take a few years off their ages."

At that the Bruins have a remarkable young club, and it should keep up in the Stanley Cup fight for five or six more years . . . The Bruins also have a world of good hockey material planted in some of the minor leagues.

Benny Drohan in Hollywood

BENNY DROHAN is singing "Southie" in Hollywood . . . Fred Allen's pal has been spending considerable time in the company of Tommy Farmer, former Castle Square boy who is now associated with the Hollywood Legion Stadium.

"Tommy Farmer," writes Benny, "is trying to get Al McCoy to come to Hollywood for two bouts, and will pay Al a top guarantee . . . McCoy could beat any of the heavyweights they have on the Coast."

I am passing this news along to Bill Brennan, manager of McCoy . . . Al is training at Lou Stillman's Gym in New York for his 10-round bout with Bob Pastor of New York that will be held at the Garden a week from Friday night . . . When Pastor upset McCoy in this city last June, Al had been away from the fistic wars for five months . . . McCoy was slow and off his timing . . . McCoy flashed brilliantly in the seventh and eighth rounds after losing the earlier sessions, but tired in the ninth and tenth rounds . . . On the form McCoy showed in his winning bout with Buddy Knox he has a chance to win over Pastor.

Pat Comiskey Coming to Town

PAT COMISKEY, 18-year-old Jersey heavyweight sensation, will be unveiled at an Argonne A. A. show at Mechanics Building on next Wednesday night . . . Comiskey is a big, handsome youngster, and reminds me of the Gene Tunney of pre-war days.

Jimmy Murphy, promising young Boston boxer, will be back training within a few days . . . He suffered a cut eye in a recent bout with Dell . . . At the time of the mishap Murphy was more than holding his own with the New Yorker, and may look for better things in the fistic game.

Eddie Mack of the Argonne Club has his scouts out seeking new talent for his coming heavyweight tournament . . . Mack has agreed to pay the expenses of young heavyweights once they reach Boston, also furnish them with license money, and pay their expenses back home if they fail to produce in the ring.

Title Mat Bout to a Finish

THERE WILL be a winner and a loser in the world's championship wrestling bout between Steve Casey and "The Shadow" at the Garden on Thursday night . . . A draw decision has been banned by the American Wrestling Association and Paul Bowser . . . The big fellows must battle it out until one or the other has been declared the victor by the referee . . . The match will get underway at 9 o'clock which will give the wrestlers plenty of time in which to decide the question of supremacy.

Casey says he will unmask "The Shadow" after he scores a straight fall victory . . . "The Shadow," a powerful fellow with amazing wrestling ability, insists he will be world's champion when he leaves the ring . . . If he is, it will be the first time that a masked marvel has ever won the championship.

Speaking at a communion breakfast at the Mission Church, Roxbury I found the Bees have many loyal rooters who are anxious to see Bob Quinn's club high in the National League pennant fight . . . The Mission Church basketball five will compete for the Catholic high school championships at the Arena this week.

PASADENA, Cal., Feb. 28 (AP)—Twenty-one White Sox rookies and regulars, mostly batterymen, reported for the initial spring training session under Manager Jimmy Dykes, beginning his sixth season as pilot.
